

June Manor Wedding Couple—Chris and Tashara Williams

An original song, a message in pictures, and a kept promise were all the evidence Tashara needed to realize Chris was different.

The couple became Mr. and Mrs. Williams on May 30th under the elegant services of the Manor of Euclid Banquet and Conference Center. As promised by Manor manager Angela Slocum-Newby, the journey was as memorable as the special day.

Chris wrote and sang his desire to be committed to Tashara as a Valentine’s Day gift. On July 4th, with a background of fireworks, he presented her with a chronology of her life in pictures, the latter of which contained a box—exactly like the real life one he gave with “the ring” inside.

So they wanted their wedding preparation experience to match how special they are to each other. “I grew up in Euclid, so the Manor was on my radar,” he explained. “It was a good decision.” Their wedding day marked the first time the couple shared a kiss—a promise made on their day of their commitment.

“The consultation with the wedding coordinator and the chef was a really good experience,” Tashara agreed. “Even though we had our own coordinator, theirs and ours worked really well together.”

“They were flexible enough to really customize what food we wanted. We could stretch our dollar a lot more. I initially wanted individual service to tables; but it was served in a timely manner even with the buffet. I was very satisfied.”

Staying within the budget was doubly important because the couple had honeymoon sights set on beautiful Punta Cana in the Dominican Republic, which they enjoyed free of financial stress.

“Our coordinator was very flexible, but the Manor offered to facilitate the event even if we didn’t have a coordinator,” Chris reflected, smiling. “I liked the fact that they were never pushy. They were truly there to serve us.”
